

Transforming behaviours

This is a 3 hour in setting face to face training.

The training will support practitioners' understanding of possible reasons for inappropriate behaviours by relating to psychological theories and brain science and will enable them to consider ways in which the practitioner can promote positive behaviour.

The training will also look at both ABC and STAR observation methods. It will include writing an effective behaviour plan for an individual child, to encourage the consistent use of positive behaviour strategies.

Learning objectives:

- discuss possible reasons for inappropriate behaviours.
- identify positive strategies and prevention techniques to use with all children.
- understand how to use the STAR and ABC models of observation for behaviour
- write a behaviour plan to use with an individual child.
- understand the importance of working consistently as a staff team and with parents.
