

Aims

The parent and child develop a closer bond and the child is secure and happy.

The parent engages with the child's Key Person to understand the child's next steps and what to do to support at home.

Parents trust their child's Key Person and gain support and advice with how to improve home learning.

The parent notices and responds to how their child is learning and both develop a 'can do' attitude.

Parent's knowledge of children's educational development grows. The parent is empowered to engage with their child's education.

A pack of resources and ideas is provided for parents and their children to use in the home.

The parent plays with their child, talks and sings with their child, and provides stimulating experiences for their child at home.

Parent's knowledge and understanding of child development increases.